MILLIONS JOINED BY MISS IRWIN'S MARRIAGE

left jewelry valued at $250,000 to be equally divided between her three children—the late Mrs. Burton Harrison, Templeton Crocker and Miss Jennie Crocker. It is expected that before the wedding Templeton Crocker will have the jewels remounted. They have been in a safe deposit box for the last twenty-two years.

Although it has been generally rumored that Miss Irwin and Crocker have been engaged for the last year, both of the young folk and their relatives had denied the report. But Tuesday morning Templeton Crocker made the announcement to Henry T. Scott who was his former guardian, and from his office he went directly to the Crocker National Bank, where he told his uncle, William H. Crocker.

Templeton Crocker, with his sister and the children of the late Mrs. Burton Harrison, owns the entire stock of the Fred Crocker Estate. This corporation owns the St. Francis Hotel building and the vacant lots adjoining at Powell and Post and in Geary street. The company also owns the Shreve and Postal Telegraph buildings, valuable holdings in Townsend street, at First and Mission, a magnificent residence at Hillsborough and vast holdings in bank stocks, government securities and railroad bonds.

ANTI-TRUST LAW MAY BE INVOKED

If it proved to be applicable under a protest emanating from the independent storekeepers stated this morning that he had not been approached on the subject as yet. The United States District Attorney added that he had not given the matter any thought but intimated that there was a possibility the law might have a local application.

The selling of the staple necessities of life at cost to the Russians has been necessarily extended to the Japanese and other plantation labor.

Whether the independents will resort to an attempt to apply the anti-trust law in connection with the store rates is one of the possibilities of the future.

MAY BE SUB-DISTRICT

According to a statement made by Inspector Thomas of the United States Internal Revenue Service if the possession of a United States license or internal revenue stamps showing the disposition of liquor is to be taken by Territorial officials as evidence of violation of the territorial liquor laws, then Hawaii would probably be made a sub-district of California for internal revenue purposes.

If a law such as this should be passed here there would be no collector but a deputy would be appointed responsible to the California office. The possession of a Federal liquor stamp making the holder a law breaker under territorial laws would deter many from taking out such stamps and would cause a great falling off in the Federal revenue.
